INNESS, JR., PAINTS SCENES OF FLORIDA

Group of Landscapes Supplements Collection in Edison Gallery.

BECOMES A ROMANTICIST

Mystic Moonlights Suggest Voodooism-Breaks From Earlier Methods.

The collection of paintings by George Inness, Jr., which have been on view in the Edison Gallery have been supplanted by a group of landscapes recently painted by Mr. Inness in Florida, Ryan's so that the tendency of his style may now be fully studied.

father, Mr. Inness, Jr., began by seeing nature very much with the eyes of Mr. Inness, Sr., and sought for the same sunsets and approaching rainstorms and reproduced them with much of the traditional color and effect. But as his work continued he became more of a romanticist and at last in the Florida andscape the break from the elder Ir ness's method is complete.

Mr. Inness has turned a resolute back upon the haunts of the tourist, upor Palm Beach and Miami, and has pre-ferred the lonely solitudes that would have appealed to Edgar Allan Poe and mysticists. He has painted strange haunts that seem fit backgrounds for voodoo rites, lonely woods and sluggish rivers; and while the natives of the region might not consider that the artist has given a completely salubrious re-port of that land, the average Northerner will believe that the pictures were done upon the spot and from first hand observation. They seem like the section of Florida that the novelists have made

PROVIDE OFFICERS' HOME.

Pahnestock Give Up Homes.

Through the generosity of Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan a few weeks ago her Central Park officers' home at 12 East Sixtyseventh street was opened, and since that time the home has offered much comfort to officers of the mational service who have come here from a distance and who otherwise would have found at times difficulty in getting comfortable quarters. So much in demand has the home been that there has been a long waiting list of disspipointed officers, and this fact induced Mrs. Ryan to appeal to Harris Fahnestock to give her the use of his house adjoining, 14 East Sixty-seventh street, and Mr. Fahnestock generously Through the generosity of Mrs. Thomas street, and Mr. Fahnestock generously consented to Mrs. Ryan's appeal. The two houses have been connected and there will be plenty of extra space for lodgings, and meals will be served in No.

Mrs. Ryan's efforts have met with great success, and she has recently built a roof garden on the house, which has outlooks on the park, and this has been a source of pleasure and comfort during the recent warm weather for Mrs.

HIS BUTTONS BRING $10 FOR RED CROSS

Lad Emulates Business Men Who Auctioned Hats.

Into the Federal Export Building, a 42 Broadway, came yesterday a mite of a messenger boy whose last name is Hertz. The first thing which met his gaze was a little booth, around which stood beautiful women clad in that uniform which is the patent of mercy and humanity. He saw men dropping coins into the boxes held by the women, and he too wanted to help the Red Cross, but he didn't see how it could be done. As he lingered near the booth he heard had given his hat to be auctioned and that he had been forced to bid $37.50 before he got it back; that Mr. Munoz scretary of the candy and book stores and the cigar stand, all in the building, had given of their wares to be auctioned and that they had brought surprising sums.

icined her in the chorus of "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

Mrs. Fairchild is the wife of Lieut. Tappen Fairchild of the Gas Defence division of the United States Army. Her whistling was one of the features of the Red Cross concert given yesterday afternoon by the Union League Club from the platform erected in front of the club's building at Thirty-ninth street and Fifth avenue. Her father-in-law, Samuel W. Fairchild, ex-president of the Union League Club and manager of the open air concerts, modestly introduced her as the wife of "Lieut F."

First Mrs. Fairchild trilled "Mother her as the wife of "Lieut. F."

First Mrs. Fairchild trilled "Mother Machree." She followed this with "The Rosary." Then, molsing a megaphone, she swung into "Kesp the Home Fires Burning." and the crowd, being a typically American one, was unable to resist the rhythm and gave her a lift on the chorus. The collection taken up at the conclusion of her numbers showed that she had whistled to the tune of over $50, and even then the crowd did not seem to and even then the crowd did not seem to

Then the crowd got another treat in he form of a duet by Signor Caesar the form of a duet by Signor Caesar Nect, tenor, and Miss Laura Robinson soprano, who sang a selection from "Cavalleria Rusticana." They were accompanied on the plane by Salvatore Fucito of the Metropolitan Opera Company and the assemblage showed its appreciation of classic music by disgorging

Helen Swain, a soprano from the newly formed Commonwealth Opera Company, again clipped the purse strings with "Just Break the News to Mother" and "When the Yanks Come Marching

Other features of the programme were solos by Miss Martha Phillips, Miss Lal-lian Wilson, Miss Helen Roger; Miss Helen Lovett, around whose name Mr. Fairchild wove a pun, and Patrolman Adam Zittell of Traffic Squad A, who is a member of the Police Glee Club.
